

For-Profit College

A for-profit college or university is a type of private college. For-profit colleges are businesses that are run to make money.

For-profit colleges accept all students, as long as the student can pay.

For-profit colleges are very common. They often advertise on TV. They accept students who cannot get accepted to any other university. They work very hard to get students to attend their colleges because they make money off the students.

Other universities do not recognize or accept credits or classes taken at most for-profit colleges, nor do they recognize degrees earned at most for-profit colleges.

Most employers will not accept or recognize credits, classes or degrees taken or earned at for-profit colleges.
